

Charles Edward Johnson, Jr. (born July 20, 1971) is an American former professional baseball player. He played as a catcher in Major League Baseball with the Florida Marlins (1994–1998, 2001–2002), the Los Angeles Dodgers (1998), the Baltimore Orioles (1999–2000), the Chicago White Sox (2000), the Colorado Rockies (2003–2004), and the Tampa Bay Devil Rays (2005). Johnson was considered as one of the best defensive catchers of his era, winning four consecutive Gold Glove Awards between 1995 and 1998. He is one of only three catchers in Major League history to catch at least 100 games in a single season without committing an error. Charles was nominated for MLB Hall of fam in 2011. He ended his career with the Tampa Bay Devil Rays in 2005.

Growing up with a father who was a high school baseball coach, who loved to grill, fueled Charles love for both. After a 14-year professional baseball career, he launched a signature Catch This barbeque sauces. Each bottle sold will benefit charities throughout the United States and internationally.
